

Good afternoon,

While watching the public testimony on the invasive species stamp it seems that the registered motorboats would be footing the bill for all recreational users.

I have a boat on a private lake and it hasn't left that body of water for 10 years.

How ever there are a lot of kayak users that go kayaking all over the state every weekend of warm weather.

The last Green Valley Corridor has a map of runs for users.

The fair thing to do so All boats weather it is motor boat , kayak or canoe would be to register each one regardless if it had a motor or not. Weeds do get stuck on paddles and the carry handles that drag in the water while you paddle around and some actually have foot controlled rudders.

Any vessel that has the ability to float and be moved to a different body of water should be charged a fee.

Respectfully Submitted,

Mark Peters
Woodstock Ct.

Sent from my iPhone